>>> Railway Conductor Program

The Railway Association of Canada (the RAC) has partnered with select Canadian Colleges to create the Railway Conductor Program. This program is designed to meet railway industry standards and position program graduates as a preferred hiring choice. Working with experts from within the industry, the RAC designed and helps to monitor these high quality programs.

Learn more about these exciting programs including locations, enrolment, fees, start dates and more - visit www.careerontrack.ca.

>>> Apprenticeships

There are many skilled trade positions in the railway industry that are challenging, rewarding and well paying. And, since Canada is suffering from a current skilled trades shortage, there is high demand for tradespeople, especially in rail.

There are several apprenticeship programs, recognized either provincially or nationally, that service the rail industry. To learn more about the apprenticeships in your province, visit www.careerontrack.ca.

>>> Get on Board

You can enter the industry right out of high school and receive on-the-job training in entry-level positions with the railway companies.

Or, you could select a pre-employment training program, which provides a combination of classroom instruction and hands-on, practical experience.

The industry also offers several options for individuals interested in entering skilled trades or apprenticeship programs.
